

CONTENTS

04 / Executive Summary

06 / Mapping the markets

12 / The market panics over yield curve inversion, rush headlong into defensive assets: this strategy is in its last inning

15 / Timing and Tactical Insight

Cyclicality is Oversold, yet its bottoming process is still underway

The number of fund managers predicting a global recession has climbed to an eight-year high, according to the Bank of America Merrill Lynch (BofAML) August Fund Manager Survey, heightened by trade war concerns.

22/ The S&P500 has entered its corrective phase and the yields are pursuing their decline into a terminal phase: when, and where will this end?

27 / Timing and Tactical Insight

Monitoring the current Equity Market Correction

33/ The US Dollar has likely peaked for now, and should fall until September but after that the Dollar may rise with Core CPI and yields until Q1 2020

36 / Timing and Tactical Insight

Defensiveness is sweeping through FX markets

43/Oil prices are still in the bottoming process for this cycle – we still see Brent oil price rising to at least $90 by Q2 2020

47 / Timing and Tactical Insight

Oil remains under pressure for now, yet may find support and rally from late Q3

52/ Splicing the Markets - Credit may have topped out already, yet could see a good bounce during Q4